About Indonesia

As the fourth most populous country in the world, Indonesia offers great potential for the medical equipment and technology market. The Indonesian medical devices market has shown strong growth over the last decade and it is widely expected to reach a market volume of US$ 1 billion latest by 2019 and it is widely expected to continue to grow at a rate of 12% annually.

INTERESTING OPPORTUNITIES FOR SWISS COMPANIES

Indonesia began implementing its Universal Health Coverage Plan in 2014, locally known as National Health Insurance scheme (JKN), with the goal of universal coverage of the country's population by 2019.

EFTA States (Switzerland, Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway) and Indonesia signed a Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement, CEPA in Jakarta on 16 December 2018. The free trade agreement between the EFTA states and Indonesia will eliminate customs tariffs of several medical equipment to 0% from day one after agreement goes into force.

FIVE REASONS WHY EXPORTS AND A MARKET ENTRY FOR SWISS MEDTECH BRANDS TO INDONESIA MATTER:

1. Missing the opportunity and enhancing the presence today would be similar to avoiding China over the past decade – indeed a costly mistake.
2. Besides being the largest economy in Southeast Asia, Indonesia is also a member of G20 and as 16th country, has recently joined the USD “One-Trillion-GDP-Club”.
3. Nowadays procurement for public hospitals is mostly handled via “e-catalogue”. it’s an online central purchasing system where hospitals can easily select the products resulting into no more complex tenders, no more price negotiations and no more 3rd parties involvement.
4. The local market continues to grow >5% on GDP level boosting consumption and investment.
5. According to interviewed insiders from hospitals, it is expected that the number of hospitals could triple over the next decade.

About Indonesia

Almost 92% of Indonesia's medical equipment and devices are made up of imports, mostly related to more sophisticated medical and surgical instruments and equipment like medical lasers and diagnostic equipment.

In 2017 Indonesia counts 2'820 hospitals (957 public hospitals and 1'863 private hospitals) and around 10'000 community health centers. The private hospital sector is developing rapidly. According to interviewed insiders from hospitals, it is expected that the number of hospitals could triple over the next decade.
